Freight company on Funen are expanding with acquisition in the capital

ODENSE: The young freight and logistics company YOYO Global Freight in Odense, who have won a Gazelle five years in a row, have just taken over Trans-Air Denmark A/S in Copenhagen

YOYO Global Freight, who less than ten years ago was founded in a basement in Odense, are experiencing solid growth and have therefore been honoured with a Gazelle five years in a row. Now the company is expanding again by taking over Trans-Air Denmark A/S, situated in Copenhagen.

- For some time now, we have been looking to expand our market share on Zealand, and therefore the takeover of Trans-Air is a logical venture. They are strong in airfreight as well as seafreight, says Kasper Andersen, who, together with his co-owner, Launy S. Kristensen, has run YOYO Global Freight through all the years.

From Stavanger to New York

The takeover means that YOYO Global Freight now – besides the head office in Odense – have branches in both Aalborg and Copenhagen. Furthermore, in recent years they have established offices in Stavanger in Norway and New York in the US. Kasper Andersen admits that the growth has been stronger than expected, but he offers an explanation himself.

- We are acting in a market with very large players, and especially for small and medium-sized enterprises it can be difficult to find your own place within the big shipping companies' solutions. But we have succeeded in creating a concept with custom-tailored solutions, says Kasper Andersen.

With the newest company takeover, YOYO Global Freight will reach 50 employees, and in the Funen company they are very aware of the danger of forgetting your core values in the process of growth.

- The customers are choosing us because we are flexible and close to them. It has always been our goal that they should not end up being just one out of many. Therefore, it is extremely important that, while we are growing, we keep insisting on the fact that the connection to our customers is the foundation of our company, says Kasper Andersen.
